6. The Federal Laws can establish cases of recognizing as dominant the position of an economic entity whose share in the market of a certain commodity is less than thirty five per cent.

6.1 Abrogated

6.2. Abrogated

7. The conditions for recognizing as dominant the position of a financial organization (excluding a credit organization) are established by the Government of the Russian Federation taking into consideration the restrictions provided for by this Federal Law. The conditions for recognizing as dominant the position of a credit organization are established by the Government of the Russian Federation in agreement with the Central Bank of the Russian Federation taking into consideration the restrictions provided for by this Federal Law. The conditions for recognizing as dominant the position of a financial organization (excluding a credit organization) are established by the antimonopoly body in accordance with the procedure approved by the Government of the Russian Federation. The procedure of establishing the dominant position of a credit organization is approved by the Government of the Russian Federation in agreement with the Central Bank of the Russian Federation. The position of an business Partnership, whose share in the goods market of the Russian Federation does not exceed ten per cent in the single in the Russian Federation goods market or does not exceed twenty per cent in the goods market when the commodity circulating this market circulates as well in the other goods markets of the Russian Federation, cannot be recognized as dominant.

8. Analyzing the state of competition under Clause 3 Part 2 Article 23 of this Federal Law, the antimonopoly body shall assess the circumstances affecting the state of competition, in particular, the conditions of access to the goods market, the shares of economic entities on the market of particular goods, the ratio of shares of buyers and sellers of the goods, the period when there is a possibility to exercise decisive influence upon the general conditions of goods circulation on the goods market.

9. The time-frame for analyzing the state of competition is determined depending on the research purposes, specifics of the goods market and availability of information. The shortest period of analyzing the state of competition for the purposes of establishing dominant position of an economic entity shall be one year or the period of existence of the goods market if less than one year.

Article 6. Monopolistically High Price of Goods

1. Monopolistically high price of the goods is the price fixed by an economic entity with dominant position, if this price exceeds the sum of the necessary production and distribution costs of the goods and profit, and exceeds the price formed under competitive conditions in the goods market, with comparable composition of goods buyers or sellers, conditions of goods circulation, market entry conditions, government regulation, including taxation and customs-and-tariffs regulation (further on referred to a comparable goods market), if such a market exists in the Russian Federation or abroad, including the price fixed:

1) by increasing an earlier fixed price of the goods, provided the following conditions are met in their totality:

a) expenses necessary for producing and distributing the goods have remained the same or their change does not match the price change;

b) the composition of goods buyers or sellers remains unchanged or changes were insignificant;

c) conditions of the goods circulation on the goods market, including those caused by government regulation, including taxation and tariff regulation, have remained the same or their changes are disproportionate to the price change;

2) by maintaining or not decreasing earlier fixed prices, provided the following conditions are met in their totality:

- a) expenses necessary for producing and distributing the goods decreased considerably;
- b) the composition of goods buyers or sellers brings about a possibility to reduce the price of the goods;
- c) conditions of the goods circulation on the goods market, including those caused by government regulation, including taxation and tariff regulation, bring about a possibility to reduce the price of the goods.

2. If the conditions specified in Part 1 Article 13 of this Law are met, monopolistically high price shall not be recognized if the goods are the result of innovative activities: activities resulted in creating new goods that do not have substitutes, or new goods that have substitutes but productions costs are decreased and (or) the goods quality is improved.

3. The goods price is not monopolistically high is it is fixed by a natural monopoly within the rates for such goods determined in accordance with the legislation of the Russian Federation.

4. Monopolistically high price shall not be recognized if it does not exceed the price formed under competitive conditions in a comparable goods market.

5. Monopolistically high price shall not be recognized if fixed at the exchange, simultaneously complying with the following conditions:

1) the quantity of goods sold through the exchange, produced and (or) sold by an economic entity that has dominant position on the relevant goods market, shall be no less than the quantity set by the federal antimonopoly body and the federal executive body that regulates the field of activities, to which production of the relevant goods belongs;

2) deals are concluded by an economic entity, that has dominant position on the relevant goods market, in course of exchange trading, which meets the requirements determined by the federal antimonopoly body and the federal executive body that regulates the field of activities, to which production of the relevant goods belongs, in particular, the requirements for the minimum number of participants of exchange trading within a trading session;

3) an economic entity that has dominant position on the relevant goods market, accredited and (or) taking part in bidding (particularly, by filing the bids to a broker, brokers), shall submit a list of affiliated persons to the exchange according to the procedures specified by the federal antimonopoly body;

5) an economic entity that has dominant position on the relevant goods market shall sell goods at the exchange regularly, with even distribution of the quantity of goods for trading sessions within a calendar month. The Government of the Russian Federation has the right to determine the criteria of regularity and evenness of selling goods at the exchange for certain goods markets;

6) an economic entity that has dominant position on the relevant goods market shall register off-exchange transactions for supplying goods, circulated on this goods market, in the cases and according to the procedures specified by the Government of the Russian Federation;

7) the minimum size of an exchange lot does not prevent entry to the relevant goods market;

8) an economic entity, that has dominant position on the relevant goods market, sells goods at an exchange that meets the requirements of the law of the Russian Federation on organized trading, including the requirements for confidentiality of information about the persons that filed the bids, particularly, by filing the bids to a broker, brokers.

6. Monopolistically high price shall not be recognized if it is set taking into consideration the specifics of developing a reserved price for the products that are sold through the exchange, approved by the antimonopoly body.

7. Monopolistically high price shall not be recognized if it does not exceed the price set at the exchange in compliance with Parts 5 and 6 of this Article, and whereupon economic (commercial) terms of a transaction are comparable on the quantity and (or) the volume of supplied goods, the deadline for honoring the obligations, payments conditions, typically applied to such kind of transactions, as well as other reasonable conditions that can affect the price.

8. Recognizing monopolistically high price of the goods under Part 1 of this Article, exchange and off-exchange price indicators on the global markets of similar goods shall be taken into consideration.

Article 7. Monopolistically Low Price of Goods

1. Monopolistically low price of the goods is the price fixed by an economic entity with dominant position, if this price is below the sum of the necessary production and distribution costs of the goods and profit, and is below the price formed under competitive conditions in the goods market, with comparable composition of goods buyers or sellers, conditions of goods circulation, market entry conditions, government regulation, including taxation and customs-and-tariffs regulation, if such a market exists in the Russian Federation or abroad, including the price fixed:

1) by reducing an earlier fixed price of the goods, provided the following conditions are met in their totality:

a) expenses necessary for producing and distributing the goods have remained the same or their change does not match the price change;

b) the composition of goods buyers or sellers remains unchanged or changes were insignificant;

c) conditions of the goods circulation on the goods market, including those caused by government regulation, including taxation and tariff regulation, have remained the same or their changes are disproportionate to the price change;

2) by maintaining or not increasing earlier fixed prices, provided the following conditions are met in their totality:

a) expenses necessary for producing and distributing the goods increased considerably;

b) the composition of goods buyers or sellers brings about a possibility to increase the price of the goods;

c) conditions of the goods circulation on the goods market, including those caused by government regulation, including taxation and tariff regulation, bring about a possibility to increase the goods price.

2. Monopolistically low price shall not be recognized if:

1) is fixed by a natural monopoly within the rates for such goods, determined in accordance with the legislation of the Russian Federation;

2) it is not below the price formed under competitive conditions in the comparable goods market;

3) price fixing by the goods seller has not resulted or could not have resulted in restricting competition due to fewer economic entities, not members of the same group of persons with the goods buyers or sellers, operating in the comparable goods market.

Article 8. Concerted Actions of Economic Entities

1. Concerted actions of economic entities are actions of economic entities on a goods market that are exercised in the absence of an agreement and meet the totality of the following conditions:

1) the outcome of such actions meets the interests of each of the above economic entities;

2) actions are known in advance to each of participating economic entities due to a public statement made by one of them about exercising such actions;

3) actions of each of the above economic entities are caused by actions of other economic entities, participating in concerted actions, and are not due to the circumstances equally affecting all economic entities on the relevant goods market. Such circumstances, in particular, can be changing regulated tariffs, changing prices for the raw materials used to produce goods, changing prices for the goods on the global goods markets, considerable changing of the demand for the goods within no less than one year or within the period of existence of the relevant market if less than one year.

2. Exercising actions towards reaching an agreement by the persons specified in Part 1 of this Article is considered an agreement but not concerted actions.

Article 9. A Group of Persons

1. A group of persons is a totality of physical persons and (or) legal entities that meet one or several characteristics out of the following ones:

1) a business entity (partnership, economic partnership) and a physical person or a legal entity if such physical person or a legal entity has, due to participation in the business entity (partnership, economic partnership) or in accordance with the authority obtained, in particular, on the basis of a written agreement, from other persons, over 50% of the total number of votes falling within voting stocks (shares) of the charter (pooled) capital of the business entity (partnership, economic partnership);

5) the list of documents enclosed to the complaint.

7. A complaint can be sent to the antimonopoly authority by postal service or by fax, electronic mail, or otherwise.

8. A complaint should be signed by a petitioner or a petitioner's representative. A power of attorney or other document confirming the scope of reference of a petitioner's representative should be enclosed to a complaint lodged by a petitioner.

9. A complaint shall be returned to a petitioner in the following cases:

1) a complaint does not contain information specified in Part 6 of this Article;

2) a complaint is not signed or is signed by a person, whose scope of reference is not documentary confirmed;

3) coming into force of a judicial act that concludes violations or absence of violations in the appealed actions (omissions) of an organizer of competitive bidding, an operator of an electronic site, a tender or auction commission;

4) the antimonopoly authority made a decision regarding the appealed actions (omissions) of an organizer of competitive bidding, an operator of an electronic site, a tender or auction commission.

10. A decision to return a complaint can be made within three working days from the day when the complaint is received by the antimonopoly authority, which must inform the petitioner in writing about the made decision on the day when the decision to return the complaint was made, specifying the reasons for returning the complaint.

11. If a complaint is accepted for investigation, within three working days from the day when the complaint was received, the antimonopoly body shall place information about receiving the complaint and its content on the official web-site of competitive bidding or on the web-site of the antimonopoly authority, notify a petitioner, an organizer of competitive bidding, an operator of an electronic site, a tender or auction commission about receiving the complaint and about suspending competitive bidding until examining the complaint on its merits (further on referred to in this Article as a notification). A notification shall include a brief description of the complaint content (the subject of investigation), the address of the official web-site of competitive bidding, where the information about receiving the complaint is placed, or the web-site of the antimonopoly authority, the place and time of examining the complaint. A notification shall be sent by post or fax, or by electronic mail. If a notification is sent by electronic mail, it shall be sent to an organiser of competitive bidding, an operator of an electronic site, a tender or auction commission to the electronic mail address given in the notice about competitive bidding, to an operator of an electronic site to the electronic mail address, given on the web-site of the electronic site on the Internet informational-telecommunication network, given in the complaint.

12. Within one working day as of the day when the notification was received, an organizer of competitive bidding, an operator of an electronic site, a tender or auction commission, whose actions (omissions) are appealed, must inform the persons that filed the bids about the fact of a lodged complaint, its content, the location and time of examination.

13. An organizer of competitive bidding, an operator of an electronic site, a tender or auction commission, a petitioner, as well as persons that filed the bids, can sent to the antimonopoly authority a counterargument to the complaint or an addition to it and take part in complaint investigation personally or through one's representatives. A counterargument to the complaint should contain information specified in Part 6 of this Article. A counterargument to the complaint shall be sent to the antimonopoly authority no later than two working days before the day of examining the complaint.

14. The antimonopoly authority must examine a complaint on its merits within seven working days from the day when the complaint was received.
